What You Need to Know

According to the CDC, it is necessary to maintain a daily healthy dietary plan, during all types of illnesses. Although there is a chance of a decrease appetite, interfering with the maintenance of a normal activity of daily living. Eating a diet with plenty of fruits and vegetables gives many health benefits. They add nutrients to your diet and help to protect you from illness. But it is important to prepare them safely. The CDC estimates that germs on fresh produce cause a large percentage of food borne illnesses in the United States.

From The Store to The Table:

Fruits and vegetables are healthy to eat. But did you know harmful germs, such as Salmonella, E. coli and Listeria can be on them? There are steps that can keep you healthy and your fruits and vegetables safer to eat.

At the store, choose fruits and vegetables that are free of bruises / damaged spots. Choose precut package fruits and vegetables that are refrigerated or kept on ice. Separate fruits and vegetables from raw meats, poultry and seafood in your shopping cart and in your grocery bags. Due to the possibility of leakage from meats which is high in germs.

At home, wash your hands before and after preparing fruits and vegetables. Wash all fruits and vegetables under running water, before eating, cutting or cooking. Refrigerate cut, peeled or cooked fruits and vegetables as soon as possible. Store fruits and vegetables away from and not next to or below raw meat products. These items can drip juicers that may have germs. Use a separate cutting board for fruits and vegetables that has never been used for cutting raw meat, poultry and seafood. Wash cutting boards, counter tops and utensils with hot soapy water before and after preparing fruits and vegetables.
