Why Does God Allow Good People to Suffer? (Part 2)

In 2 Corinthians, Paul's first words to the Corinthians address the matter of suffering in a way which corrects our thinking about the problem of pain. I have entitled this message, "Why Does God Allow Good People to Suffer?" Listen closely to the Apostle Paul, and you will learn some of the reasons a good God uses suffering in the lives of His people.

Paul—No Stranger to Suffering

We must first see that the Apostle Paul, who writes to us about suffering, is a man who has had more than his share of suffering.

His valued helper, Titus, was to have met him at Troas ... with an anxiously awaited report on developments at Corinth, but he did not turn up (2 Cor. ii. 13), which accentuated the apostle's concern. Disappointment, apprehensiveness, and physical illness now swooped in concerted attack upon Paul to make this perhaps the darkest hour in his heroic but costly struggle for the propagation and preservation of the true Gospel. "When we were come into Macedonia," he writes, "our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on every side. Without were fightings; within were fears" (vii. 5). As G. G. Findlay says: "Corinth appeared to be in full revolt against him. Galatia was falling away to 'another Gospel.' He had narrowly escaped from the enraged populace of Ephesus — 'wild beasts' with whom he had long been fighting, and at whose mercy he had left his flock in that turbulent city.

Prayer Request

Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. James 5:16

HealthCare Ministry

Rumor, Disparity and Distrust: Why Black Americans Face an Uphill Battle Against COVID-19 (Part 2)

Submitted by: Beatrice Ramsey

The documented health disparities between racial groups in the U.S. – including higher rates of chronic diseases and lower access to health care among blacks compared with whites – make some African Americans more vulnerable to COVID-19, experts warn. At the same time, more insidious problems, such as hidden biases white doctors have toward black patients, and black Americans' historical mistrust of the medical system, could exacerbate an already bad situation, accelerating transmission of the virus in struggling communities. "I expect the COVID-19 pandemic to impact African Americans to a greater extent than other more socially advantaged groups," says Dr. Lisa Cooper, an internist and social epidemiologist with the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health. "This is because as a group, African Americans in the U.S. have higher rates of poverty, housing and food insecurity, unemployment or underemployment, and chronic medical conditions, and disabilities." Meanwhile, as cases in the U.S. continue to mount – surpassing 55,000 and topping 800 deaths as of Wednesday, according to a Johns Hopkins University COVID-19 tracker – some doctors are calling on the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the World Health Organization to release data that could indicate whether the nationwide shortage of coronavirus tests is leaving black communities further behind. Current CDC testing data does not include a demographic breakdown. In the U.S., "there are great discrepancies in not only the diagnosis but the treatment that African Americans and other minorities are afforded," Dr. Ebony Hilton, an associate professor of anesthesiology and critical care medicine at the University of Virginia, told BuzzFeed News. "So, I want to make sure that in this pandemic, that black and brown people are treated in the same way and that these tests are made available in the same pattern as for white people." The concern that black communities presently hampered by health inequities could be devastated by the coronavirus is rooted in decades of research as well as the nation's checkered racial history.

SANITIZE WITH STERAMINE

Why Sanitize? The Law Requires It! Good Health Demands It!

Steramine is an economical household sanitizer that's great for emergencies. One tablet effectively kills microorganisms and infectious bacteria found on non-porous surfaces to help keep you and your family from falling ill. This powerful tablet mixed in warm water cleans surfaces as it kills HIV-AIDS Virus, E-coli, Staph Infection (S. Aureus), and Listeria Monocytogenes.

Simply dissolve Steramine tablets in warm water ~ one tablet makes a gallon of sanitizing solution. These powerful sanitizing tablets activate in water and then turn the water blue when they're ready to help you sanitize surfaces. Pour the odorless sanitizer into spray bottles and spray your bathrooms and frequently used surfaces like doorknobs, tabletops and kitchen counters. Dry with paper towels.
