Seizure Awareness

Submitted by: Beatrice Ramsey

Seizures involve uncontrolled electrical activity in the brain. The brain cells (neurons) are responsible for receiving and sending messages, not at the same time. For some abnormal reason, such as head injury, stroke, brain- infection, high levels of salt and sugar in the blood will cause inference, with normal brain function. This will cause a seizure activity. Resulting from synchronization of receiving and sending message impulses, at the same time. DID YOU KNOW - emotional stress can lead to seizures? It is usually related to a situation or event that has personal meaning to you. It may be a situation which you have a serious feeling of loss of control. This will occur during continuation of fear, concerning severe emotional anticipation of some specific danger. Seizures can occur when you are awake or sleep. Most seizures last from 30 seconds to two minutes. A seizure that lasts longer than five minutes, is a medical emergency.

It is possible for a seizure to start on one side of the brain and spread to the other side. The signs and symptoms of a seizure will vary from person to person. General signs and symptoms includes: unusual behaviors, uncontrollable movements and loss of consciousness. Most seizures can be controlled with medicine. However, managing seizures can affect your daily life. You can work with your health care provider to balance seizure control and medicine side effects. REMEMBER: call for emergency help if the person has a second seizure, immediately following the first seizure. Also, if the person isn't breathing effectively after the seizure has stop, or if a high fever or heat exhaustion follows the seizure. STATISTICS: About 1 in 100 people in the United States, had a single unprovoked seizure attack. 1 in 26 people will develop a seizure in their lifetime. People who are older, unmarried and have sleep disorders are at higher risk. About 6 out of 10 people diagnosed with seizures, can become seizure free within a few years with proper treatments.
