Why Does God Allow Good People to Suffer? (Part 9)

Jesus' sufferings were also those which the Father willed (see Matthew 26:39) and were thus prophesied in the Old Testament (see Isaiah 52:13-53:12). And of great importance to us, we must remember that these innocent sufferings of our Lord were the means by which our sins have been forgiven forever (see 1 Peter 2:22-25).

(2) Suffering, even unto death, presents an opportunity for each of us to express and expand our faith in the God who not only ordained our suffering, but who raises the dead.

The kind of suffering Paul describes as his personal experience is that which seems certain to lead to death. No one can know for certain what situation Paul faced, but he does inform us that he is certain he will die. One such situation is seen in Acts 14, where Paul is stoned at Lystra (14:8-20). As the crowd begins to stone Paul, I very much doubt Paul is thinking to himself, "Oh, well, God will no doubt keep me from dying." I am sure he thinks he will die. Whatever Paul is describing in our text must have been similar in its certainty of death.

Paul's suffering is not just "unto death"; it is a suffering he believes is certain to lead to a horrible death. The New American Standard Bible, unwisely in my opinion, supplies two words in verse 10: "Who delivered us from so great a peril of death, ..." The words, "a peril," are not in the original text but have been supplied by the translators who believed they were needed to convey the sense of the text. I much prefer the rendering of the New King James Version: "Who delivered us from so great a death, ..."

“Six Tips for Safe Grocery Shopping During Coronavirus Pandemic” (Part 2)

Submitted by: Beatrice Ramsey

4. Research food alternatives if you have any allergies -If you or someone in your family has food allergies, shopping will be especially challenging now. Research alternatives to your usual purchases so that you have some idea what is or isn't safe before you enter the store. For example, if your son is allergic to tree nuts, in addition to your usual brands, you now want to know multiple alternatives, e.g., breads and cereals, that are nut-free, so that you can quickly scan your options at the store, rather than lingering in the aisles reading labels. Since this is a stressful time, and people are overloaded, I highly recommend having a second person read the labels once you return home.

5. Try "contactless" shopping-Better than all of this would be to do a "contactless" shop. Order ahead, pay ahead, then swoop in quickly to pick up your purchases. Many of our local markets are offering this option, and I think it's safer for the market employees and for the shoppers. Now is not the time to meander through the supermarket. Go infrequently, shop efficiently. Get home, shoes off, wash hands, disinfect, and jump in the shower.

6. Stay home as much as possible
