Why Does God Allow Good People to Suffer? (Part 19)

Conclusion

What should Paul's words say to the Corinthians to whom he is writing? For one, they put Paul's sufferings in a whole new light. From 1 Corinthians we know these saints are into success, not suffering. Paul's suffering is at least two strikes against him. Some see his suffering as Job's friends did—as proof of sin or carnality in Paul's life (see 2 Corinthians 10:2).

They look down upon Paul for the very things which are a cause of rejoicing for Paul and are also proof of his apostleship. Paul's attitude toward suffering should take the wind out of the sails of those who point to his adversity as proof that his ministry should be disdained and disregarded. Paul's suffering is his badge of apostleship.

Paul's words concerning his suffering should call into question a great deal of teaching popular today, teaching about health, wealth, and prosperity. Many tell us that God wants us to prosper, to have good health, and to have a trouble-free life. They tell us we can have this prosperity if we but have the faith to believe and claim God's promises. They rebuke us for our lack of faith and blame us for our suffering if we fail to achieve what they promise.

The simple fact is that God did not promise believers prosperity and popularity and good times in this life. He promised us adversity, rejection, and suffering because we have trusted in Jesus Christ. As He suffered, we too will suffer. As He was rejected by men, so we too will be rejected and persecuted.

HealthCare Ministry (Part 2)

New Study Identifies 6 “Clusters” of COVID-19 Symptoms

Submitted by: Beatrice Ramsey

“Although continuous cough, fever and loss of smell (anosmia) are usually highlighted as the three key symptoms of COVID-19, data gathered from app users shows that people can experience a wide range of different symptoms, including headache, muscle pains, fatigue, diarrhea, confusion, loss of appetite, shortness of breath and more, notes a statement published on the Zoe app. The progression and outcomes also vary significantly between people, ranging from mild flulike symptoms or a simple rash to severe or fatal disease.”

The researchers also looked at which clusters of patients were more likely to require ventilators or supplemental oxygen and found that patients in clusters 6, 5, and 4 (19.8 percent, 9.9 percent and 8.6 percent, respectively) needed the most respiratory support. But “only 1.5 percent of people with cluster 1, 4.4 percent of people with cluster 2, and 3.3 percent of people with cluster 3 COVID-19 required breathing support,” according to a statement by King’s College of London, whose researchers, along with scientists at Massachusetts General Hospital, provided input during the development of the app for the study.

The study authors suggested that these results “could be used to monitor at-risk patients and predict medical resource requirement days before they are required,” adding, for example, that “patients who fall into cluster 5 or 6 at day 5 of the illness have a significant risk of hospitalization and respiratory support and may benefit from home pulse oximetry with daily phone calls from their general practice to ensure that hospital attendance occurs at the appropriate point in the course of their illness.”
