Some Valuable Nuggets on Forgiveness Ephesians 4:32 (Part 17)

Now we want to focus on what it means to forgive and how we can practically apply it.

1. To forgive others, we must understand the nature of forgiveness.

In biblical forgiveness, the wrongdoer admits, "I sinned against you," and asks, "Will you forgive me?" The one wronged must respond by promising, "I forgive you." This is very different than just saying you're sorry or saying to the one who wronged you, "Hey, don't worry about it!"

Paul says that we are to forgive each other "just as God in Christ also has forgiven you." God didn't say, "Hey, don't worry about it, we all make mistakes!" He didn't just brush our sin aside. Rather, our sin renders us truly guilty before God's holy justice. We have violated His holy law. He requires that the penalty be paid. But in love, He sent His own Son to bear the penalty that we deserved. When the guilty sinner repents of his sin and lays hold of Christ by obedient faith, God graciously and totally forgives the debt of sin. He releases the sinner from the guilt of his sin. He promises not to remember those sins against him, in the sense of not bringing them up again for judgment. And, He is reconciled to the sinner through the blood of Christ.

Prayer Request

Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. James 5:16

“Update on COVID”- (Part 5)

Submitted by: Beatrice Ramsey

1. Cases are no longer falling

U.S. still faces two problems. First, the pace of vaccinations has slowed, and a substantial share of Americans — close to one third — remains hesitant about getting a shot. These unvaccinated Americans will remain vulnerable to Covid outbreaks and to serious symptoms, or even death.

Second, the Delta variant — which appears to be both more contagious and more severe than earlier versions of the virus — is spreading rapidly within the U.S., after having first been identified in India.

It now accounts for about 10 percent of cases, according to Dr. Scott Gottlieb, a former F.D.A. commissioner.

Together, these two forces help explain why new cases have stopped falling:

Many experts are concerned that cases will eventually start to rise as Delta becomes the dominant form of the virus. “We are vulnerable,” Dr. Kavita Patel of the Brookings Institution remarked. Dr. Robert Wachter of the University of California, San Francisco, wrote: “I’ll now bet we’ll see significant (incl. many hospitalizations/deaths) surges this fall in low-vaccine populations due to combo of seasonality, Delta’s nastiness, & ‘back to normal’ behavior.”
