Some Valuable Nuggets on Forgiveness Ephesians 4:32 (Part 25)

Submitted by: Eric W. Doss

A. THE MOTIVE IN FORGIVING OTHERS SHOULD BE TO GLORIFY GOD, WHO HAS FORGIVEN YOU.

As we saw in Ephesians 1:7, the forgiveness of our sins is according to the riches of His grace, so that we will be to the praise of His glory (1:12). If someone sees how much you have forgiven someone else and praises you for it, be quick to divert the praise to God, who has forgiven you so much.

B. REMEMBER HOW AND HOW MUCH GOD HAS FORGIVEN YOU IN CHRIST.

As we have seen, He forgave you by grace alone. You didn't deserve anything but His judgment, but He still forgave you out of His great love. And He has forgiven you far more than you can ever forgive anyone else.

God Forgives truly! His forgiveness means that He tosses it in the depths of the sea. Having been forgiven that much, He commands us to forgive others for their lesser sins against us (Matt. 18:21-35).

Prayer Request

Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. James 5:16

“The Delta Variant Unknown” - (Part 6)

Submitted by: Beatrice Ramsey

The bottom line

Imagine this. The situation is uncertain, and different people will make different decisions.

Maybe this frame is helpful: For children and vaccinated adults without other major health problems, there are a lot of reassuring signs. Covid appears to present less risk than some other daily activities. Among Americans under 17, fewer than 500 have died of Covid since the pandemic began; many more — a few thousand every year — die in vehicle crashes.

As Wachter said about Covid this week, “Risk is low enough to live life, high enough to be careful.”

For people who do have a health condition that increases their risks — like severe obesity, a previous organ transplant or an active case of cancer — the calculations may be different. Most children hospitalized with Covid, for example, have been older teenagers with a serious pre-existing health condition, Dr. Jennifer Lighter of N.Y.U. told me. Because Delta has caused a surge in Covid cases, it represents a threat to vulnerable people.

The hardest calls may be for vaccinated people who are over 65 and generally healthy. Delta’s severity does not appear to be fundamentally different for them, either.
